Prosperino advocated for extremist anti-government views and Antifa politics. She used the alias “Lill” in her militant activism. Based in Charleston, W. Va., she was t executive director of the Mountain State Harm Reduction leftist coalition. The anarchist collective believes that recovery from substance abuse is a form of state oppression and that full bodily autonomy means supporting those who wish to inje or smoke dangerous drugs. Critics of the “harm reduction” industry say their needl end up on the streets of residential areas and outside schools.

My world was rocked this morning at 2:30am. Appalachia lost a legend. Rest In Power Lill.
June 19, 2025. Lill was a regular presence during the early days of VHRC. You could find them guiding Lawson Koeppel and Alina Lemire through the hollers of West Virginia, packing kits in our office behind the Ramada, handing out home-brewed salves to our participants and staff, or transporting life-saving supplies to and from our partners throughout Appalachia.
Lill was a force of nature. Their wisdom, love, and insight fundamentally informed who we are as an organization. They were a talented teacher and mentor who shared their gifts as a subject matter expert for the National Harm Reduction TA Center at the CDC and a staff member at the National Harm Reduction Coalition. There are more than a few harm reduction communities that are saving lives today because of Lill's support and guidance.

The 'punchnazisitsokay' Antifa account mourns the loss of a fellow member Prosperino's obituary says she died at Jefferson Medical Center in Ranson, W. Va. without specifying the cause. She grew up in Whitesburg, Ky. and was involved in t "Kentuckians for the Commonwealth" liberal campaign group before becoming radicalized to far-left politics. As I've documented repeatedly in my reporting on th radicalization pathway for Antifa members, they usually start as campaigners for Democrat Party-alligned groups or politicians before moving to the DSA, and then finally, Antifa.

On her Facebook page, she used the name “narcanarchy1312.” 1312 is the numeric rendering of A.C.A.B. — “all cops are bastards.” The number is used as an Antifa dc whistle. She also has the symbol of the three diagonal arrows, another symbol for Antifa members to recognize one another.

Propserino has numerous Antifa dog whistles on her Facebook page

Antifa members disproportionately suffer from mental health co-morbidities and many find that they do not experience fulfilment through their political extremism. Many of them commit suicide every year, but before doing so, they do significant ha to others and society around them.

Prosperino's legacy appears to be a few social media posts from her comrades.
